E-Motive

E-Motive, a project funded by the EU, helps find solutions to local needs. E-Motive works with Latin America, Africa, and Asia, through the exchange of knowledge and experience from diversity.

The goal of the project is for a global education. This consists of awareness for other cultures, and their economic, social and political systems. E-motive helps to destroy stereotypes of other cultures through knowledge.

The "One World" Association has worked with E-motive from 2013-2015. The project depends on many international organizations to prosper, which is why the year 2013 is designated for finding partners and volunteers.

The City Matters

"The City Matters," a project that monitors the budget as a method of citizen participation (engaging the local community in public matters).

The project is designed to increase citizen participation. This is done through monitoring the budget and developing social tools to control public spending.

The idea originated within the Netherlands, where local leaders initiated discussions between citizens and the local government. The discussions included analyzing data, monitoring spending, and creating ways for more community interest. The Netherlands then created a software to help with the projects intent.

European Week Against Racism and Polish Culture Festival

The “One World” Association celebrates the European Week Against Racism, to commemorate the International Day of Eliminating Racial Discrimination which was established by the UN General Assembly on March 21st. The day was created to commemorate the Sharpeville massacre, which occurred on March 21st, 1960 in South Africa. During a peaceful demonstration, 70 participants were murdered for opposing discrimination and racial segregation within the policy of apartheid.

Volunteers of the “One World” Association created “Week Against Racism” in Warsaw and the “Polish Culture Festival” in Poznan during March 2013, to give people a chance to get to know other cultures, to work on stereotypes and through this to cope with racial discrimination.

The Story of the World in Turek

It was created to inspire the local society of Turek town (Wielkopolska) to actively participate in culture, such as creating activities or trying other mediums of art. Throughout the year, creative workshops for children, teenagers and adults are held. The workshops integrate storytellers, from remote corners of the world, inspiring the audience before creating their art. Children aged 3-6 years, accompanied by their parents, participated in art workshops, by creating hand-painted aprons, dolls, and balcony flowers. Children aged 7-12 years, learned about graphic arts techniques and worked as real artists-designers. Youth and adults together created jewelry, such as bracelets, caskets, and brooches. Musicians also have a workshop. They prepare a musical composition for the story. The last part of the workshop involves singing. The participants prepare songs for the final show.
